IN REMOVAL PROCEEDINGS

APPEAL

ON BEHALF OF RESPONDENT: Robert B. Jobe, Esquire

APPLICATION: Asylum; withholding of removal

ORDER:

PER CURIAM. This case was last before us on December 18, 2002, when we summarily affirmed, without opinion, the results of the Immigration Judge's decision denying the respondent's application for asylum and withholding of removal. The Immigration Judge found that the harm suffered by the respondent was inflicted on account of his Indian ethnicity, but concluded that the harm did not rise to the level of past persecution.

On (b) (6) the United States Court of Appeals for the (b) (6) reversed the Immigration Judge's decision, concluding that the harm did constitute past persecution. Noting that the Immigration Judge did not apply the presumption of future persecution, the court remanded for consideration of evidence regarding current conditions in Fiji. The court further directed that the motion to remand filed by the respondent while his case was on appeal to the Board, to consider newly available evidence regarding conditions in Fiji, be considered.

In light of the court's finding that the respondent suffered past persecution, we find that a remand is appropriate to allow both parties the opportunity to present and develop evidence regarding current country conditions in Fiji, and how those conditions might affect this respondent's application for asylum. See Lopez v. Ashcroft, 366 F.3d 799 (9th Cir. 2004). This evidence may of course include the evidence presented by the respondent in support of his previous motion to remand. As past persecution has been shown, the burden of proof now shifts to the Department of Homeland Security to rebut the presumption of future persecution. 8 C.F.R. § 1208.13(b)(1)(ii).

Accordingly, the decision of the Board in this case dated December 18, 2002, is vacated, and the record is remanded to the Immigration Judge for further proceedings consistent with this decision and the decision of the court.
